

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER

If you suspect that you or a loved one has suffered due to medical malpractice, here's some information you can collect to help your lawyers better assist you. You do not need to have all this information before speaking with an attorney, but the more you have, the better they can help.

1. Who was injured? If it wasn't you, what is your relationship with the injured person?

5. Sorry to be indelicate, but is the injured person still alive? If so, how has this injury negatively affected their life?

2. When was this person injured? We will need to know the month and year, at least.

6. What is the name of the doctor or medical professional you suspect caused this injury? At what medical facility or facilities was the treatment provided?

3. In what way were they injured? Please be as specific as possible.

7. Please list the times the injured person met with this medical professional to the best of your knowledge. Please tell us the date and location of each meeting.

4. Why do you suspect this injury was the result of medical malpractice?

(questions continued on next page)

8. What expenses have you incurred as a result of this injury? Costs can include additional medical fees, lost wages, and other bills you've had to pay because of this injury.

9. Have you spoken with any other attorneys about this case? If so, who?

You find yourself buried under insurmountable medical bills and other expenses. You might be overwhelmed and stressed about how to pay for everything.

You suspect you need to file a lawsuit but are confused about what it might take. If we're able to take your case, Ross Feller Casey's medical malpractice attorneys might be able to find the financial relief you need.

Ross Feller Casey knows you want to find hope despite your tragedy. To do that, you need an experienced Philadelphia medical malpractice attorney. We know you have mounting bills, and you're angry about the injustice you've faced. We believe the people who hurt you shouldn't win and should pay for what they've done. We understand how scary a lawsuit can sound. Don't worry. We've won record-setting, multimillion-dollar verdicts for cases like yours.

So, get your free consultation today. Then you can stop being a victim and start pursuing justice.

Here's how we start the process.

1

Contact us for a free consultation.

2

Speak with one of our medical malpractice attorneys in Philadelphia and learn if we can help you.

3

We will guide you through the legal process.

Ross
Feller
Casey

+1 888-681-9763

One Liberty Place
1650 Market St.
34th Floor
Philadelphia, PA 19103

rossfellercasey.com/questions